MARIO ADNET/Jobim Jazz: This guitar ace is quickly becoming Adventure Music's MVP as well as looking more and more like the cat Brazil is next most going to be proud of after Jobim. With his work being fairly entwined with Jobim, here he let's his fingers fly with a set that shows the Jobim legacy is in good hands, so to speak. Not trying to tried and true as so many safely do, Adnet follows his muse and comes in with a set that asks but doesn't beg to be heard. It's time well spent. The unfolding of a new legacy in Brazilian music is right here for the taking.

KATHIE BAILLIE/Love's Funny That Way: As long as the 80's are coming back on so many fronts, why shouldn't they come back in country pop as well? Formerly of Baillie and the Boys with a bunch of hits under her belt, Baillie is essentially back in the same form and format with a bunch of new songs by old pals that are just as sharp as before. Solid country/pop that long on brass and sass showing "Idol" worshipers how the real pros do it. A tasty comeback set that hits hard and often, never failing to deliver the goods.

HONOLULU JAZZ QUARTET/Tenacity: This hard working, straight ahead jazz quartet continues to show there's more to Hawaii music than Don Ho, Don Tiki and Led Kapana, not that there's anything wrong with that. It's hard to sustain a jazz scene in Hawaii and stay together as a working unit, but this crew does it without playing vacation music and keeps honing those chops to keep them in the front ranks of straight ahead crews. This set builds on their impressive debut of a few years ago and let's jazzbos everywhere know there's love I the air for them. Tasty throughout and quite well played.

SONY PICTURES

MARIE ANTOINETTE: Sofia Coppola and Kirsten Dunst are apparently building a body of work together, but I would have rather seen Paris Hilton in the lead role. Dunst brings a proper oft kilter insouciance to the role, but it wold have been fun to see Hilton play herself in this part. Coppola, who's morning breakfasts as a kid had to be better than any film school education, one ups Baz Luhrman in updating history by fusing contemporary and old elements in this new telling of the clueless teen queen that was so out of touch, she ultimately lost her head over it all. One of the reasons why this under performed in theaters is the target audience for this is groomed to watch anything on the ol' plasma. If you have forward tastes or are part of the target audience, this is quite the sumptuous history lesson. With great attention to
